Researching Forest Hills through the 1930 Census

By Cozy Palmer

I was researching the house number change that occurred circa early 1945. Since I was deep into the numbers I decided to count the population, race, ages, and occupations.

It's a look into the lives of the residents of Forest Hills in 1930 using the 1930 Census for Forest Hills, "Part of Justice Precinct 3; Unincorporated place, Forest Hills; Enumeration District 57-115; Supervisor's District No. 10; Enumerated April 16, 1930."

The census was the FIFTEEN CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES and was administered in our neighborhood on April 16, 1930.

Reading the four pages is like trying to read a foreign language. The enumerator's route makes no sense, but it was very wooded and dense and he did it one day.

Houses at intersections were hard to document; for example, 1457 San Rafael is listed under Santa Clara on 9A. Also, when someone wasn't home, he went to the next house and then returned later. I used the 1930 Directory as a supplement, but the US Census is the official count.

I've read and reread because the handwriting is so bad, but this is what I've found:

- There were approximately 50 homes. Sometimes the back houses were counted, sometimes not. On several house number entries, there are multiple homes listed, each owned by different people; John Lomax on page 8B is an example; the Shumates are listed as owners of a house on his house number; this actually starts on 8A with Patrick Boyd who is a Contractor of Residences; a builder.
- The population was approximately 163. Fourteen were black and were in service roles.
- Occupations included salesman of tires and engines, produce broker, teachers, several dentists, a surgeon, dermatologist, ophthalmologist, telephone operator, shoemaker, Assistant purchaser of candy, oil business, architect, a woman in publishing at McMillan, screen company, nurse, furniture salesman, auto salesman, real estate secretary, match salesman, attorney, bank clerk, ice laboratory, and more.

Take a look at the four pages from the 1930 census below. Click on any census page to open a larger image.
